Republican Doctrine.

The American people hold the financial honor of our Government as sacred as our flag. The money of the United States and every kind and form of it, whether of paper, silver or gold, must be as good as the best in the world.

The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage earner and the pensioner must continue forever in purchasing and debt-paying power to the dollar paid to any Government creditor.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

"Gold is the one standard of value among all enlightened commercial nations. An honest dollar worth 100 cents everywhere, cannot be coined out of 53 cents worth of silver, plus a legislative fiat."

GARRET A. HOBART.

A disordered currency is fatal to industry, frugality and economy. It fosters the spirit of speculation and extravagance. It is the most effectual of inventions to fertilize the rich man's fields with the sweat of the poor man's brow.

DANIEL WEBSTER.

The Words of a Statesman. Governor John W. Griggs, of New Jersey, has thus defined the position of the Sound Money Republicans in this great conflict against the hordes of Depreciated Currency and Repudiation: "I believe in a protective tariff, but I would sooner a thousand times live under a Sound Money-Free Trade Administration than under a Free Silver Administration, even if it favored Protection."

Must Preserve Our Credit.

"Credit plays a great part in the silver question. If your merchants buy goods from England, you will find that credit amounts to a great deal, and on a silver basis we will pay a big sum for this credit. This is why merchants do not want a silver basis. They say that on a silver basis you will scale down our debt one-half. Would you do it, and deprive the man who owes one-half of what you owe him? Shall the nation do it?"

"I say so, and not from sentiment do I make this statement, but from a selfish reason. We must preserve our credit in the world, and if we adopt a silver basis we will ruin it the world over. We want no silver basis to help us out of these hard times, because the silver basis is dishonorable. It is brought on these hard times, and these hard times will last until we turn down these Silverites and when we settle this thing for good and all in November we will have no more of hard times."

THOMAS B. RYAN.

"I do not believe that you can legislate up the value of anything any more than I believe you can make generals heroes by legislation. The Continental Congress tried legislating values up even by rescuing to penalties, but the worthless law of trade, as independent as the law of gravitation, kept them down. I do believe you can legislate a value down, and that you can do it by attempting to legislate it up."—Roscoe Conkling, February 4, 1862.

The Western Silver States claim that silver has been greatly damaged by the act of 1873, and yet there was not one of them in existence at that time. They have all grown up, Colorado, Montana, Idaho, South and North Dakota, Wyoming and Utah since that time, and have bragged about their prosperity, and all since 1873. Now has the act of 1873 hurt

Criticizing Our Own Joe's Only Speech.

Some of the writers on finance have got as far back as the episode in the temple when the money changers were driven out. The next thing they will be proving that Noah coined coined 1¢ for 1 dollar in the ark.—Mount Holly (N. J.) Herald (Dem.).

The Greenback Craze.

We have been through all this once before. The greenbacks of 1878 were not bad men. They were sincere and had a better case than the silver men of today. We must have artificial inflation and cheaper money, they said, or blackest ruin awaited us. Prices were low and work was scarce; taxes were high and debts had to be paid, but we persevered and resumed specie payment.

From that moment the capital of the world was at our disposal. We had a good tariff, which makes us do all our own work, and from 1879 to 1893 years of prosperity which placed the United States in a great position in the world.

If we do the like thing to-day, like things will follow. With resumption of our emergency currency export of gold will cease. With the certainty that the dollar paid will be equal to the dollar lent will come credit and confidence. With that other certainty that we are to do all our work with the earning of wages steadily increasing, which is the basis of that prosperity which is alone worthy of this great nation—the prosperity of the whole people.

Down Will Come Wages.

The only advantage that can be expected to come either to the mine-owner, the farmer, or the manufacturer is from a reduction in the cost of producing goods; that is, by a reduction in the wages to labor. If the person who raises wheat, or corn, or beef, or pork, or those manufacturers who make goods which the people buy, could reduce the cost of their labor one-half it would be a great saving to cost of production, but it would be wholly at the expense of the laborer.

Firm as a Rock.

It has already been demonstrated in the silver question that the Republican party will not sell out the cause of honest money for a tariff bill. When the Dingley bill, which passed the House of Representatives as a regular Republican measure, was introduced in the Senate, it was promptly dropped and there never was the faintest sign of Republican surrender to the demands of the silverites.

Secured Legal Tenders to use Instead of Gold.

Along with the heavy exports of gold during the time the government was buying $4,500,000 of silver per month there was a large balance of exports of merchandise. At the same time the Government receipts of gold rapidly diminished. In January, 1890 (mark the dates!) 93 per cent of the duties on imports was paid in gold; in December, 1891, only 65 per cent was paid in gold, and in January, 1893, two months before Cleveland went into office, the receipts of gold for customs fell to less than 9 per cent, while the legal tenders redeemable by the Treasury reserve bank of gold ($24,000,000) increased from $24,000,000 to upward of $24,000,000.

The Order by Fire.

Yes, it was the late Henry Cernauchi, the ablest bimetalist of the age—the father of bimetalism, that 1857—who declared that money should be tested by the ordeal of fire.

Coins which when melted down retain the entire value for which they were legal tender before they are melted, he said, are good money, and those which do not retain it are not good. Although Cernauchi's arguments are constantly being quoted by the silver advocates of today they somehow overlook the passage containing this conclusive test of coins.—New York Herald.

Carrying Enough Weight Now.

In 1834 when one ounce of gold would only buy fifteen and three quarters ounces of silver, the law was passed fixing the weight of the standard silver dollar. Silver has fallen nearly one-half. Why does it circulate at 100 cents because it is melted? Because every one who accepts it relies for the other 46 cents on the credit of the Government, which has repeatedly declared its intention to keep its silver dollars at a parity with gold ones. The Government can keep the limited number of these now in existence at this parity, but with free coinage, which would mean an absolutely unlimited increase in the number, the Government could no longer do this, and our dollars, like those of free coinage Mexico, would circulate at the value of their weight in bullion, which is about 53 cents.

Only Weight and Purify.

Under free coinage, the coin would be "Government money," only in the sense that the Government would certify to their weight and fineness.

Forcing Circulation.

There is one other point, however, that the silver-mining crowd demands of the Government, and that is that it shall make their coins legal tender. The demand for a force bill, making legal tender, which people are unwilling to accept as such, always comes from those who wish to force bad money into circulation. If silver dollars under free coinage would be as good as gold dollars, there would be no need to force them upon anybody. Merchants would protect themselves by advancing prices. Creditors would have to accept it in payment of debts previously contracted, and workmen for wages.

How Silver Certificates Drove out Gold.

The effects of the Silver Purchase act, which at the same time pledged the Government to maintain a parity of gold while every month was making the gold reserve in the Treasury, were soon visible to all attentive observers. Exportation and hoarding of gold increased, and European holders of American securities began to unload in the fear that they would be paid in depreciated silver. The exports of gold in the years immediately preceding and succeeding the Sherman act partially tell the story, as follows:

Year	Exports of Gold
1880	$24,356,497
1881	$20,033,486
1882	$14,949,074
1883	$9,085,581
1884	$7,531,050
1885	$7,775,810

The Test of Value.

A paper dollar, a silver dollar, a pay a debt, is a legal tender for debt in this country, but only the gold dollar will pay the debt. We own abroad. Hence paper and silver maraud with us, and gold is exported.

In this contest, patriotism is above party and national honor, is dearer than any party name. The currency and credit of the government are good now and must be kept good forever. What we want is a sound policy, financial and industrial, which will give confidence and confidence to all, for when that is done, the money now unemployed because of fear for the future and lack of confidence in investment will quickly appear in the channels of trade.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

Farmer (to conductor on Illinois Central railroad): "Are the railroad men going to vote for Bryan?"
Conductor: "Very few of them. You see, it is like this. We can't see where from silver at 10 to 1 is going to benefit us. If the probability of our money is lost in two we can't live on our present wage. The company cannot double our wages, as their bonds are payable in gold and they are compelled by law to charge not over 3 cents per mile for each passenger. Whether could they double their freight rates. If they did, where would the farmer be? No, sir, the railroad men are not for free silver at 10 to 1."

It is a fundamental principle in coinage, recognized and followed by all the statesmen of America in the past, and never yet safely departed from, that there can be only one basis upon which gold and silver can be concurrently coined as money, and that basis is equality, not in weight but in the commercial value of metal contained in the respective coins.

GARRETT A. HOBART.

There are now stored in the Government vaults 300,000,000 ounces of silver bullion, for which certificates are in circulation, and calculating upon the capacity of the mint it would take five years or more before the silver Government now owned could be turned into money without touching an ounce of the avalanche of bullion that would pour in were a free coinage act to pass, but the bullion of the mine owners would be dumped at the mint, and the certificates of deposit be negotiable, and all silver coin in circulation, fall to the price of silver bullion.

Gold to the amount of nearly $600,000,000 would be withdrawn from circulation and the contraction ensuing only made up by the coinage capacity of the mints at the rate of $40,000,000 of depreciated silver dollars per annum.

These are tiresome times when men like Senator Lindsay and Representative McCrery, of Kentucky who repeatedly declared that the free and unlimited coinage of silver would not only be a dishonest act, but a ruinous one, now declare that they would have upheld the Chicago candidates because they were regularly nominated. The Saviour was tried before a "regular" tribunal, and crucified because he did not demand it. Had Lindsay and McCrery been living in those times they would have upheld the crucifixion, because it was "regularly" done. Upon men who swallow principles and convictions because a mob demands that they do so.—Philadelphia Press.

Mexican Dollars for Sale.

I am prepared to furnish Mexican dollars at the market price, (now 54 cents each), to all advocates of Free and Unlimited Coinage of Silver. These Mexican dollars contain more silver than the standard dollar of the United States. One hundred of these dollars (for sale at 54 cents) will coin 101 Bryan dollars and pay wages and debts to that amount. Buy now and make 67 per cent on your money.

HENRY BOURLAND, Earlington, Ky.

The Utica Herald considers the great issue in this campaign to be the election of McKinley. It says: "The election of McKinley means security against all the dangers threatened by the united opposition. It means the end of the wild craze of half repudiation, of debased currency, of broken contracts, of assault on the courts, of encouragement of riot."

In the year 1856 the world's production of silver amounted to 31,400,000 ounces, and the market relation between silver and gold was 15 3/8 to 1. In 1896 the silver production amounted to 67,753,000 ounces, and the market ratio was 17 1/8 to 1. In 1886 the world's production of silver was 53,927,000 ounces, and the ratio of value was 20 7/10 to 1. In 1895 the total product of silver was 167,000,000 ounces, or five times as much as in 1856, and the market ratio was 17 1/8 to 1. In 1886 the world's production of silver was 53,927,000 ounces, and the ratio of value was 20 7/10 to 1. In 1895 the total product of silver was 167,000,000 ounces, or five times as much as in 1856, and the market ratio was 17 1/8 to 1. Farmers, as a class, live more independently and are more prosperous than any other class of people. They are apt to complain when they do not make a considerable surplus over their expenses. Yet the majority of men who live in cities have a hard struggle to keep even, and to work late and get up early to do even industrial work and temperate farmer can, with frugal habits, make a living for himself and family, and in doing so he has far less anxiety than the most of those who struggle with life in the cities.—Globe Democrat.

The Purchasing Price.

The government can't create something out of nothing. It can call fifty-three cents worth of silver a dollar, and make it legal tender for a dollar, and so compel private creditors to accept it as payment for a dollar, but it is impossible for any individual to give the purchasing power of an honest dollar, because every merchant at once raises the price of his goods to offset the depreciation in the metal of value. When unable to maintain the parity, the billion price will govern.

There are now stored in the Government vaults 300,000,000 ounces of silver bullion, for which certificates are in circulation, and calculating upon the capacity of the mint it would take five years or more before the silver Government now owned could be turned into money without touching an ounce of the avalanche of bullion that would pour in were a free coinage act to pass, but the bullion of the mine owners would be dumped at the mint, and the certificates of deposit be negotiable, and all silver coin in circulation, fall to the price of silver bullion.

For Bullion Value Only.

In the transaction of business among each other the merchants, manufacturers and bankers of the globe, accept the coin of each government only at the bullion value. Our gold coin is worth no more and no less than so much weight in bars. Our silver coin is also received on the same basis in the markets abroad.

Why demand that our own people should be defrauded to give a few silver mine owners. If it is difficult now to earn one dollar it would be just as hard then to earn two, and the two would buy no more than one does at present.

Why They Lack Money.

The free-silver orator "tells neither does he spin." He goes and sits at the corner groceries talking politics while the weeds grow in his corn and his wife chops the grass and does the housework and he confirms himself instead of reading and informing himself.

Government Ownership of Railroads.

The interstate commerce act is believed by many people to have reduced railroad rates. There is every proof that it has done nothing of the kind. Vice-President W. P. Clough, of the Great Northern, read a paper at the recent convention of State Railroad Commissioners, in which he showed that in five years ending with 1887, when the interstate commerce act was passed freight earnings had decreased 16 1/2 per cent. per ton per mile, and passenger earnings 7 1/2 per cent. per passenger per mile. In the next five years the decrease was less, or 13 1/2 per cent. for freight and 5 1/2 per cent. for passenger traffic. Federal legislation has had no effect, but it has not reduced them faster than they were falling before 1887.

The quarrel of the Populists with Chicago is not alone with the existing gold standard of value. It is with past and present Democratic administration and policies. It is with the payment of our just debts. It is with the repression of nobility and the protection of jeopardized life and property. It is with the judicial interpretation of the laws. It is with the Constitution of the United States. Acquiescence in such a revolutionary and piratical programme on the part of thinking and patriotic citizens is impossible.

Twenty-seven years of protection, from 1865 to 1893, reduced our national debt $1,757,301,878. Three years of free trade, from 1893 to 1896, increased our national debt $263,329,530. That is a pretty solid argument in favor of protection.

Democratic Doctrine.

The proportion between the values of gold and silver is a mercantile problem altogether. * * * Just principles will lead us to disregard legal proportions altogether; to inquire into the market price of gold in the several countries with which we shall principally be connected in commerce, and to take an average from them. A commission should therefore be appointed to inquire what are the proportions between the values of fine gold and fine silver at the markets of the several countries with which we are or probably may be connected in commerce, and what would be a proper proportion here, having regard to the average of their values at those markets, and to the circumstances, and the coinage of gold and silver at our mints should be at the ratio thus determined.

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

In case free coinage of silver should be established in this country, I presume insurance companies and all other institutions would continue to make their payments by checks and drafts on banks, as heretofore; but, in my opinion, the whole volume of our currency would sink at once to the silver basis, and these checks and drafts would be in silver dollars or their equivalent, instead of gold or its equivalent, as is now the case.

J. G. CARLISLE.

Cleveland Predicts Democracy's Destruction.

One thing I know. Forces are at work which certainly mean the complete turning back of the hands on the dial of Democracy and the destruction of party hopes. Our Southern friends, if they persist, will be left alone with their free coinage heresy. The danger is that another Southern idea and a charge of wickedness for the public safety on the financial question will do service in the place of memories of the Civil War.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Ignorance and design are productive of much mischief. The former is the tool of the latter, and is often set to work suddenly and unexpectedly. In a word, the necessity arising from a want of specie is represented as greater than it really is. I contend that it is by the substance, not with a shadow of a thing, we are to be benefited.

Depreciation keeps pace with the quantity of the emission, and articles for which it is changed rise in a greater ratio than the sinking value of the money. Where then is the danger, the artisan benefited? The debtor may be, because, as we have observed, he gives the shadow in lieu of the substance; and, in proportion to his gain, the creditor of the body politic suffers. Whether it be a legal tender or not, it will, as has been observed, very truly, leave no alternative. It must be that or nothing. An evil equally great in the door it immediately opens for speculation, by which the least designing and perhaps the most valuable part of the community are preyed upon by the more knowing and crafty speculators, who therefore only observe that so many people have suffered by former emissions that, like a burnt child who dreads the fire, no man will touch it who can possibly avoid it. The natural consequence of which will be that the specie which remains unexpected will be instantly locked up."

Had a Good Time.

A goodly number of our godly citizens went to Nebo last Saturday to attend Quarterly Meeting, which was held at that place. They returned Sunday evening with their spiritual strength renewed, and loudly praising the good people of that city for their untiring hospitality and culinary skill. The Nebo folks could secure a large delegation from that place to attend a protracted meet at the year around, provided our citizens would be interested against gout and rheumatism.
